Compare the EPANET code in the previous section to the free PCSWMM in this section, and note the following: 1) the EPANET code operates at a finer mesh; 2) the code uses a function to calculate pressure differentials; 3) the EPANET code. online tools to support critical, evidence-based research. Using a translation model to communicate CKS biology and effects to immunocompromised patients. Improving recognition of serious infection early is key to saving lives. The Chronic Kidney Disease Epidemiology Collaboration (CKD-EPI) equation is a model that adjusts serum creatinine for patients with CKD.

When serum creatinine is used to estimate glomerular filtration rate (GFR), this calibration can be used to translate the CKD-EPI equation into an equation for interpretation of estimated GFR. In an era of concurrent infections, the recognition of overwhelming infection is more important than ever. (Amonkhet, Theros) - Choosing between square brackets [] and parentheses () has been a bit of a conundrum when writing lists of creature types. The consensus seems to be that using square brackets is more consistent with the resulting tokens; for example, the creatures of the Ghoul tribe have the word "Ghoul" followed by a list of unique creature types, whereas the creatures of the Red Wasp tribe have a list of creature types followed by the word "Wasp". However, some card descriptions (Eternal Masters, for example)

have square brackets, and others (Oxidized Scales, for example) have parentheses. So we
